Kosher Certification

Kosher is the set of religious rules that govern the nutrition of observant Jews. The main rules derive from the Bible, or the Torah. To be Kosher certified, a product needs to meet very strict quality standards. All the production and packaging procedures as well as every single ingredient used in its preparation comply with the restrictive laws of Kasheruth, in particular through this certification it is certified that the Medac products contain no substances of animal origin.

The Kosher Medac certification has been issued by the Rabbinical Court of Central and Northern Italy.
